EXPERIMENTAL SMOKING AREA REJECTED BY S. A. D. 44 BOARD AT SPECIAL MEETING

—To Reconsider at May 21 Session
By a three to ten margin the S. A. D. 44 Board of Directors rejected an experimental smoking area for students at Telstar Regional High School in a special session held at Telstar last Thursday evening.

The proposal, advanced by Supt. Basil E. Kinney, and reportedly supported by a majority of the Telstar faculty and students, would have provided a smoking area for the remainder of the current school year, with the matter being reviewed by the board before the 1973-74 school year begins.

Before the vote numerous students, staff and citizens present indicated their support of the proposal as it would possibly alleviate some of the unsatisfactory conditions existing in the toilet areas of the school.

It was pointed out that providing an area for smokers would reduce the amount of student loitering in the toilet areas. A majority of the board members contended that they could not in conscience give approval to a practice that scientific research had determined to be harmful to health.

Discussion continued after the vote was taken on the proposal, with the result that the board approved a motion to reconsider the question at the regular board session on Monday, May 21.

Attempts to secure a student smoking area at Telstar have been made at the board level two times previously, the last being in August of 1971.

Board members not present at the May 10 session were Clarence Romington, Bethel, and Paul Wight of Newry.

THREE OUT-OF-STATERS FOUND DEAD IN CAR AT GILEAD FRIDAY

The Oxford County Sheriff's Department released the names, Friday night, of three out-of-state men, who apparently died in their car in Gilead, some time Wednesday night, May 9.

The men were identified as John E. Knibbs, 22, West District Road, Unionville, Conn.; Alloway W. Groun, 25, Coppermine Road, Farmington, Conn.; and Harry C. Brown, 79, Route 1, West Burke, Vt.

The trio were discovered Friday morning by Harry Taylor of Gilead, parked on the edge of Route 2. Mr. Taylor notified the Sheriff's Department.

The department of the attorney general was notified of the deaths and assigned Homicide Detective Dale Ames and Sgt. Ormond Trask of the Maine State Police to assist with the investigation. Dr. Harry Brinkman, Farmington, a state medical examiner, determined that the three men died of accidental carbon monoxide poisoning.

The three men had apparently pulled off the surface of the highway to spend the night in their car.

GREENWOOD CITY

Mrs. Collista Morgan, Cor.

The day had been uncommonly fine and the evening was perfect. A stillness was there that could be given only by the night.

The aisles of the forest were curtained in darkness. No breeze seemed to be stirring yet ripples lapped the shore then vanished with a murmur.

The swamps and waters about rang with a triumphant chorus, the voices of the spring peepers. Sometimes their exultant voices round like tiny bells then again it near by the din is almost deafening. Occasionally there comes the jargon of the old bull frog. It is all joy of a spring night as they shout and rejoice from every puddle and stream.

From up the hill I could hear the thrush singing his evening song. He is a fountain of music so lifting and exhilarating.

The next day was lovely, too. I went with Ruth to do a few errands. Those finished; we took an unplanned hike. It was familiar ground to her but all new to me.

In a field a carpet of blueets were in full bloom. No one who lives in New England during the month of May can forget the loveliness of these "Quaker Ladies". The roadsides, meadows, and at times lawns are thickly carpeted with dainty enamel-like blossoms. They are always pretty and seem to flourish with especial vigor and in great profusion in our lovely state.

It is truly a time to look and listen to this green and fertile world. From year to year we are apt to forget how many blossoms there are. Things come with a rush. The old brown hills are green again and how the greens change in the valley.

We went through low bushes until we came to the road Ruth was seeking. Then it was uphill most of the way.

On ridges stood evergreens, they

Mary Stecher

Mary Stecher, a junior, is a nurse's aide at Ledgeview Nursing Home in West Paris. She feels that she is helping people and she has obtained a lot of experience working there. The patients seem to enjoy Mary, because she keeps them laughing. She has been working at Ledgeview since January on Mondays from 7:30 and is in charge of ten patients.

Mary loves to sit and talk with the patients. She says she waits on them hand and foot, and time really flies when she's working. Mary feels that being a nurse's aide is as far as she wants to go in that particular field, because what she likes is to keep the patients company. She thinks that later on she'll either go into child development or missionary work.

This summer Mary plans to work in a nursing home in New Hampshire near where she'll be living. Then, next year after she graduates, Mary wants to travel. She is going to Scotland with her grandmother first, and she wants to travel all over the United States, to Viet Nam and East Pakistan. Mary has always wanted to do this, for the travel experience. After that, she expects to settle down to college.

Mary likes to go for walks by herself, she likes sailing and boats and the water. She loves to talk on
